APOSTLE DOWIE DEAD... PEACE REIGNS IN ZION

Chicago, Ill.—John Alexander Dowie died at 7:40 o'clock Saturday morning at Shiloh House, Zion City. There were present with him when he died only Judge D. N. Barnes and two personal attendants. Dowie began to fail rapidly five weeks ago.

Friday afternoon, however, there were no indications of approaching death. He received a few followers and prayed for some people. His condition seemed to be about the same as for the last two or three weeks. One of the attendants remained with him until midnight, and was relieved by another attendant. Shortly before 1 o'clock Saturday morning, Dowie became delirious and his talk was the same as at a religious meeting in the days of his prime. He denounced the people with old time vigor, ordered the guards to throw out disturbers, and acted just as he had on so many previous occasions, and gradually became weaker and weaker, and an attendant telephoned for Judge Barnes, who reached Shiloh House at 7 o'clock. Forty minutes later Dowie died.

Late in the day Voliva declared that the death of the former leader will not affect the future of the church in any adverse manner. "Because of Mr. Dowie's sad mental and physical condition," said Voliva, "he has been a hindrance in many ways. Now that he has gone, all bitter feelings, just or unjust, will disappear. Dowie has done a work for humanity which is in some respects second to none that has been done by anybody, past or present. Nothing will be heard but talk of his good deeds, especially if it should be proven that his mind commenced to fail several years ago. His death will not alter the conduct of the church."

A Remarkable Service.

Yesterday morning at the 1st Christian church Elder S. R. Hawkins of South McAlester, Corresponding Secretary of the Indian Territory Christian Missionary Society, presented the plea of the home board and received $325. This places the 1st Christian church here in the Living Link line and ranks with the Oklahoma City, Chickasha, South McAlester and other churches of importance in the new state. This means that the local church here will place in the field and sustain, its own evangelist.

The home board and field will supplement this amount with $650.00. Last year every dollar paid to the board attracted fifteen other dollars. At the same ratio this means a return for this $325.00, the sum of $4,875.00.

CONVENTION GETTING READY FOR ADJOURNMENT

Guthrie, Ok., March 10.—Telegrams were sent to the twenty absentees by the constitutional convention to be in attendance Monday and Tuesday when the convention expects to pass finally the remainder of the constitution's provisions and arrange for sine die adjournment. It is planned to recess, subject to call by President Murray, while a committee arranges the constitution and makes seven final drafts of it. This work will require about two weeks, during which the convention will not be needed in Guthrie.

Mr. Williams of Durant drove his report on public service corporations through to completion with the exception of one section which seeks to make gas as well as oil pipe lines common carriers, and provides that they shall transport each other's tonnage or product as the corporation commission or law may provide. This section is pending for a legal construction.

A provision was inserted that in all jury trials the jury shall return a general verdict, and that no law shall require the Court to direct the jury to make findings on particular questions of fact, but the Court may, in its discretion, direct such special findings. This reverses the present Oklahoma practice.

Over Mr. Williams' vigorous protest, the convention eliminated a section of the provision which stipulated that no corporation except one chartered under laws of Oklahoma should be authorized to construct, operate or maintain any railroads, street railway, canal, pipe, car, express, telephone or telegraph line or car association in the state.

A provision is added giving authority through the commissioner for mine, elevator, compress operators, etc., to put in side tracks and compel railroad companies to make track connections. This is from Missouri.

The supplemental report of the insurance committee was ruled out of order, save in respect to the election of commissioner by the people. The convention also asked that the official qualifications be outlined. Authority was given the legislature to provide for the organization of mutual fire and life companies, but those features of the new report reducing the entrance fees, the annual tax and for pensioning disabled and meritorious firemen were ruled out on a point that a redraft of the provision was not asked for. The tax remains 2 per cent on the gross business.

The convention failed to make headway on the election systems, and with three legal reports for its guidance discovered that the ordinance submitting the constitution in election was not technically drawn and the committee's system was sent to the legal committee for revision.

By agreement the legislative districts were reopened and an additional senatorial district created. In the revision three senatorial districts were changed to be Woods and Woodward counties, Alfalfa, Blaine and Major counties; Oklahoma county and a new one, Canadian and Kingfisher counties. An effort to give Wagoner county two representatives instead of one failed. Greer county was divided into two legislative districts, with two representatives.

The public buildings committee has recommended that at the first general election after the year 1913, the question of permanent location of the capital is to be submitted to the voters as the legislature may provide. No money is to be expended for temporary quarters in Guthrie, except for the conventional transaction of the state business. When once located, the capital shall not be changed, except by a two-thirds vote of all the people. The committee makes no recommendations regarding the location of two additional normal schools in the Indian Territory, as was proposed.

FOR SUPREME COURT CLERK.

Former Editor of The News Well Qualified for the Position.

E. C. Patton, journal clerk of the constitutional convention, has announced his candidacy on the democratic ticket for clerk of the Oklahoma supreme court. Mr. Patton was for two years owner and editor of the Tishomingo (I. T.) News, which business he relinquished to become private secretary to Gov. Douglas H. Johnston of the Chickasaw nation.

Formerly Mr. Patton lived in Ada where for a time he practiced law, and later was a joint owner and editor of The News. To make an efficient clerk of the supreme court requires a strong combination of talent; he should have a good knowledge of the law, should have the editorial instinct and some literary attainments, and should be an adept in the technique of clerical work. It so happens that Mr. Patton is well qualified in all these respects. The News staff has known him for years, and they can testify that he is especially well qualified for the duties of this responsible position.

COMMISSIONERS NAMED TO NEGOTIATE FOR COAL LAND

Guthrie, Okla., March 11.—President Murray has appointed the Coal and Asphalt commission which is to negotiate with the Choctaw and Chickasaw tribes on the part of the new state for twenty mineral deposits of Indian Territory. The commission is composed of T. H. Leahy, Pawhuska, Ok.; James J. Chambers, Atoka, I. T.; A. H. Ellis, Orlando, Ok.; J. B. Tosh, Hobart, Ok.; and J. J. Curl, Bartlesville, I. T., all delegates to the constitutional convention. Mr. Leahy, chairman of the commission, is an intermarried Osage, and has been prominent in the management of that tribe's affairs before the national government. He and Mr. Chambers are attorneys. Mr. Tosh and Mr. Ellis are farmers and Mr. Curl is a business man.

The appointment of this commission was authorized by the convention after the subject on purchase of the coal and asphalt deposits for the new state's school fund had been extensively investigated. These deposits lie almost entirely in the Choctaw and Chickasaw nations, ranging in value, it is represented, from ten to twenty millions of dollars. The Choctaws and Chickasaws are understood to favor the deal and in the event Oklahoma decides to purchase will join in asking the government's consent to a transfer of the property. The commission is directed in the resolution to make its recommendations to the first state administration.

Biggar for Alderman.

Many good democrats have urged R. G. Biggar to make the race for alderman in the 4th ward, so that he authorizes The News to announce his candidacy subject to the action of the city primary tomorrow.

Mr. Biggar has been a resident of Ada for several years, during which time he has established himself in the high regard of his fellow citizens. Proprietor of the Ada Bottling Works, he is recognized as one of Ada's good, sound business men. He has such a grasp of business principles, both in private and public affairs, as would make him a good alderman.

The News commends him to the democracy of the city.

President's Son Better.

Washington, March 11.—Marked improvement is shown in the condition of Archie Roosevelt, the president's son, who is ill with diphtheria. Surgeon General Rixey last evening expressed the opinion that Archie was practically out of danger, so far as the diphtheria is concerned, but the disease has left him in a somewhat weakened condition. He added, however, that if no complications set in the boy should be well in two or three weeks.

CRAZY SNAKE WILL TAKE HIS BAND TO MEXICO

Oklmulgee, I. T., March 11.—Chitto Harjo, more familiarly known as "Crazy Snake," who has long refused to accept the ways of civilization and who still yearns for the wild days of the plains, who went to Washington once to present his grievances and who was against the government then, is going to bid Oklahoma good-bye.

Statehood was the last straw for the picturesque chief.

Mexico will soon become his home. Chitto Harjo says he will take his band of tried and true warriors to Mexico with him.

Already the affairs of the Snakes are being shaped up for this move, and M. A. Holcomb, agent for the Santa Fe in this city, has made necessary arrangements for the transport of the Indians.

The band of Snakes, headed by Chitto Harjo, sent a delegation to Mexico some time ago and the land was arranged for between the committee and the Mexican government.

INTEREST INTENSE IN THE BATTLE OF BALLOTS

On the eve of the battle of ballots tomorrow, whereat will be chosen the Democratic nominees for city offices—which is tantamount to election—the interest is intense. All day long groups of men have been on the sidewalks in animated fashion discussing and arguing for the various candidates. There is every indication of a lively election tomorrow.

For the larger offices there are spirited contests, except for attorney and for treasurer. T. P. Holt for the former and S. W. Hill for the latter have no opposition. R. G. Biggar having today announced for alderman from the Fourth and J. T. Sutton in the Third, there will be contests for aldermanic honors in every ward except the 2nd.

As to qualifications of voters tomorrow, aside from the pledge to support the nominees, six months' residence in the Territory and 30 days in the ward prior to the regular city election, April 2, is required. This as decided by the executive committee in conformity with the Oklahoma election law.

The voting places will be the same as announced in the mayor's proclamation elsewhere in this paper. Polls will be open at 8 a. m. and close at sun-down.

HIGH JUMPING AT SEA.

A Whale that Jumped Over a Boat—Tunas That Leap 20 Feet.

"The most stupendous of all leapers of the sea," says a writer in Outing, "is the whale. I have seen a monster weighing hundreds of tons, possibly 80 feet in length, rise slowly and deliberately out of the water until it appeared to be dancing on the surface, entirely clear of it, then sink slowly back."

"Such a leap is on record in the annals of the British navy. A large whale cleared a boat, going completely over it, an estimated leap of 20 feet in air—how many in a lateral direction was not known."

"Exactly how high a tuna can leap it is difficult to say. I have seen the water beaten into foam by them four miles distant, and have a photograph showing a fish—a black streak at least a mile distant high in air—a jump of certainly 10 or 15 feet; and it is my opinion, based on what I have seen, that it is possible for a lusty tuna at full speed to project itself 20 feet into the air and 30 or 40 feet in a horizontal direction."

"I judge the latter possibly from the leap of a big tuna which cleared the kelp and landed high on the rocks at Santa Catalina. I have often stood in the center of a school of leaping tunas and watched them, but the situation is not one suggestive of repose or peace of mind."

NEWSBOYS HAD REAL TREAT.

And Possibly Young Woman Enjoyed Experience, Too.

A young woman, blond and pretty, was getting fully as much fun out of a very thoughtful act as were the eight very dirty little newsboys she was treating to maple sundaes in a Twenty-third street drug store the other day. They were one and all having the time of their lives, says the New York Sun.

It was a real party and the eyes of the octet simply bulged in excitement. It was lots better than getting rid of their last paper.

"Gee, kids! ain't this bully?" exclaimed one, but his companions had their noses so close to the English walnuts plentifully sprinkled over the top of the drink that they couldn't talk intelligently.

The girl stayed by until the last spoonful was regrettably scooped out and the boys, thanking her in some what bashful fashion, little in accord with their natural brashness, passed out the door. Then with a happy sigh she too left.

Someone watching the proceeding rather envied her the satisfaction, for small boys of that sort do appreciate anything done for them which doesn't point a moral.

An Unseen Witness.

The criminal court at Salzburg, Germany, has been forced to hold a sitting in a convent, owing to the refusal of a nun to give evidence in public. A woodcutter in the service of the convent on the Nonnberg was on his trial for stealing, and the evidence of Sister Coelestine, one of the nuns, was material. She, however, refused to attend the court on the ground of her vow, which forbade her to allow herself to be seen by men. An appeal to the archbishop of Salzburg elicited the reply that only the pope himself could release the sister from her vows, so arrangements were made for her to be examined in the convent. The judge and the counsel were accommodated in the visitors' room, while Sister Coelestine, supported by the abbess, took her place behind a curtain so that she would be heard but not seen. The sister then underwent an examination and cross-examination, and on her evidence the man was condemned to two months' imprisonment. The anti-clerical papers protested against evidence given in this way being admissible.

What He Meant.

Praise from a husband's lips is always pleasant to the wife; but the praise may be too discriminating to suit her.

Under the very colloquially apt title of "The Mean Thing," this amusing little tale is to be found in Youth's Companion.

"I thought it was nice of you to tell that carpenter, who seemed to think women knew nothing, that I could hammer nails like lightning," said Mrs. Morse to her husband. "But I'm afraid, dear, you are not an unprejudiced judge. I really don't think I'm such a very good hammerer."

"Oh, he knew what I meant," said Mr. Morse, cheerfully. "You know, lightning never strikes twice in the same place, they say."

Wouldn't Be Dictated to By Webster.

Dr. Bacon, a New England clergyman of long ago, was reproached by a friend with some pronunciation which was not "according to Webster."

Webster lived in his parish, and the doughty divine was not disposed to be snubbed with the dictionary.

"What right has Webster to dictate my pronunciation?" he demanded, haughtily. "He is one of my parishioners, and ought to get his pronunciation from me, and not I from him."—Youth's Companion.

Force of Habit.

"How was it that you could not keep that job I got you as a car conductor?" "I am afraid it was owing to my habit of procrastination." "In what way?" "You see, even when people wanted to get on my car I would try to put them off."—Baltimore American.

JOHN HAD BEEN RETRIEVED.

Friend Told Good Lie and Stuck to It, But Without Avail.

This being a true story of a recent occurrence the prominent politician will be known as Mr. John Brown, and his intimate friend, a politician of less prominence, as Mr. James McCoy. It seems that at about noon Mr. Brown was unduly exhilarated when seen by his friend, and after exacting from him a promise that he would at once go home Mr. McCoy went to his office. About three o'clock in the afternoon he responded to a telephone call, and was just a little flurried on learning that Mrs. Brown was at the other end of the wire.

"Have you seen John to-day?" she asked.

"I did, Mrs. Brown. He was called away on important business this morning, but just a little while ago I got a message from him that he would start back on the next train. He'll be in town in about an hour."

Mr. McCoy was still at work in his office at five o'clock when again he was called to the telephone. Again it was Mrs. Brown.

"Has John got back yet, Mr. McCoy?"

"Yes, but he had several important matters to attend to, and just started for the street car a few minutes ago. He'll be home in three-quarters of an hour at the latest."

"I am very much obliged, Mr. McCoy, but I put John to bed half an hour ago."

All of which goes to show that there are times when a lie well stuck to is not as good as the truth.

WHERE AMERICA IS SUPREME.

Traveler Praises Coffee Served in This Country.

"It is refreshing to me," said the smartly gowned woman, "to get back to America, where I can have water and good coffee to drink with my meals."

"Oh, yes, of course, one can buy bottled water in Europe, but somehow one seldom does; at least not to use on the table. One drinks according to the country over there, and the natives seem as ignorant of the uses of water, internally at least, as a Kentucky colonel."

"In England I drank ale and tea; in France, claret; in Italy, Chianti; in Germany, beer and Moselle and Rhine wine, and in Holland, coffee."

"No, I did not like the coffee they make in France, notwithstanding we hear so much in our own restaurants about French coffee. Neither do I care for Turkish coffee. In fact, America and Holland—or, I should say, New York and Holland—are the only places in the world where I can find coffee to suit me."

Cremation of the Dead.

Cremation is one of the most ancient methods of disposing of the dead. Before the beginning of the Christian era, cremation prevailed among all civilized nations, except the Jews, Chinese and Egyptians. Later, however, this form gave way to earth burial.

Cremation has had a revival during the last few years, and from one crematory in existence in 1880, there were over 50 in 1890, and since then others have been added to the list each year. Cremation is common in Japan, where 47 per cent. of the dead are incinerated. The first crematory in the United States was built at Washington, Pa., in 1876, by Dr. Le Moine, and the first incineration there was that of the body of Baron de Palm, which took place in December of the same year. This was the only crematory in the United States until 1884.—Sunday Magazine.

Mount Kosciusko Park.

A hundred square miles of country around Mount Kosciusko, one of the highest peaks of the Australian Alps, has been proclaimed a reserve by the government, with a view of the formation of a national park. "Freedom shrieked when Kosciusko fell," according to the poet Campbell, and this peak was so named by a brother Polish patriot, the late Count de Strzelecki, a political refugee, who spent several years in Australia and did some valuable exploring and geological work. He was probably the first discoverer of gold in Australia, but at the request of the local government, which feared an outbreak of the convict population if the news became known, he made no public announcement of the fact. He spent the closing years of his life in London and was knighted by Queen Victoria.

Bible Drove Him to Drink.

Abram B. Cartridge, very drunk, was picked up by the police force from the gutter on South Main street, says a dispatch from Waterbury, Conn. In his hand he clasped an open Bible and he spoke to the officers strangely in Scriptural phrases. In court Abram said that study of the Bible had driven him to his fall.

"It is so full of inconsistencies," he declared. "I learn its truths and am uplifted—then I discover that its truths are false, and I sink to the depths. How can I deliberately stay in my right mind, judge, when I find that the foundation of salvation is built on sand, and good liquor, which will make me forget it, is so cheap?"

Cartridge was sent to jail for 30 days.

Proof of Good Memory.

"I got a shock from a 'lectric battery to-day," said the first hobo. "Gee! It's a funny kind of a feelin'; feels just like takin' a bath." "Say," exclaimed the other one, "you must have a great memory."

OVERDRAFTS

It is becoming well known by business men that overdrafts, whether large or small, are not approved by the comptroller of the currency. The large central banks allow overdrafts only in a very small way, and this, it matters not how small, is not approved by the powers that be. This unbusinesslike habit of overdrafts grew out of advancing on moving products, such as cotton, grain and fat stock on the move. The overdraft system is wrong and the man whose account is always overdrawn is the man who spends more money than he makes and will finally have no bank account.

SCHOOL LAND PROVISION.

Weaver Stands Steadfastly Against Sale Thereof.

In the constitutional convention Saturday by a vote of 79 to 13 the provision shifting the state and school land question to the shoulders of the legislature was adopted. This was somewhat of a triumph for the lessees of those lands who earnestly desire the sale thereof with preference rights to purchase for themselves. Mr. Weaver urged constitutional prohibition of their sale, and voted nay on the provision adopted, and as reported in the Oklahoma State Capital spoke as follows in explanation of his vote:

"I voted no on this provision because I think it is a serious mistake not to safe-guard in the constitution a portion of Oklahoma's school lands, because my platform stood for the retention of the school lands until authorized to be sold by a majority vote of the people; and because I, together with many other delegates signed the labor demands, pledging ourselves by that act, to not vote for the sale of the school lands, unless authorized by a majority vote of the electors, the rightful landlords. I fear that many delegates in this convention have, in their eagerness for political preferment been willing to jeopardize the safety of the school endowment, a heritage which belongs not to them, but to the children of Oklahoma."

Do Not Crowd the Season.

The first warm days of spring bring with them a desire to get out and enjoy exhilarating air and sunshine. Children that have been housed up all winter are brought out and you wonder where they all came from. The heavy winter clothing is thrown aside and many shed their flannels. Then a cold wave comes and people say that grip is epidemic. Colds at this season are even more dangerous than in mid-winter, as there is much more danger of pneumonia. Take Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, however, and you will have nothing to fear. It always cures, and we have never known a cold to result in pneumonia when it was used. It is pleasant and safe to take. Children like it. For sale by G. M. Ramsey.

ON SECRET SERVICE

True Stories of Experiences in the State, War, Treasury and Postoffice Departments.

By COL. JASPER EWING BRADY

(Late Censor of Telegraphs and Chief Signal Officer, U. S. A., Santiago de Cuba.)

ESSENCE OF QUININE

"It's chance, I tell you, more chance than anything else that works these so-called intricate cases to a successful conclusion."

Col. Cheney was talking with Sid Guthrie on matters general when the above remark was made.

"That's all true enough, Col. Cheney, but you know plenty of cases where intuition and perspicuity have helped you and me wonderfully."

"True enough, Sid; both these qualities help up to a certain point, but you'll find out bull luck is the deciding factor."

"Seuse me, kunnel," said the ever faithful Jeff, poking his head in the door, "but Mistah Pughitt is out heah, an' pow'ful anxious to see yo'."

"Seems to me, Jeff, every one impresses you as being 'pow'ful anxious' to see me. But Pughitt's all right; show him in."

"Yas, sah," said Jeff, bowing out.

Bob Pughitt was inspector in charge of the post office department at Chicago and was one of the best and brightest inspectors in the business.

He and Cheney had been together in government work and were fast friends. Cheney knew Pughitt's visit at this time could only mean one thing—"a case"—and he was not sorry, because things had been somewhat slack lately. Cheney's blood was just a trifle sluggish and he needed a bracer. In a jocular way Guthrie had told Cheney to "get married," but the colonel was still "heart whole and fancy free."

"Hello, Bob," said the colonel as his visitor came in. "What brings you round this time of day?"

"Pretty serious case, Jack, and I received an order this morning from Wickery, chief inspector, to take the matter up with you. I'm not sorry to do it, either."

"Must be pretty serious, Bob, if you can't fathom it." This was not said in a flattering way. Cheney meant every word of it. On more than one occasion Cheney had said: "Bob Pughitt is the best natural detective in the business, and I'd sooner have any other sleuth than he after me if I'd committed a crime." But even natural detectives sometimes get up against it, and Pughitt was no exception.

"Well, Bob, I'll help you all I can, though I don't promise any results," smiled Cheney.

"You never do promise results, Jack, but you generally get some of them, just the same."

Pughitt lighted a cigar and Cheney waited. Guthrie, of course, had left. He knew if Cheney wanted him he would let him know in short order. Col. Cheney waited for Pughitt, well knowing he would get all the details in sequence.

"It's a peculiar case, Jack," said Pughitt. "You know there are a good many mail routes out west, where the mail is carried only on stages. Of course the Northern, Central and Southern Pacific roads are through, but they run straight across states and as yet have no tributary lines amounting to anything."

"Yes, I know that, Bob," said Cheney.

"There's a stage line out in Montana and Dakota which runs through good territory. There are a number of fine ranches and several booming towns in the section. There are no banks to speak of, and most of their business has to be done by registered mail. St. Paul is the first point where banking facilities are carried on, but even that city is not much used, the ranchers and traders preferring to do their business in Chicago or New York."

Cheney began to see the trouble, but waited for Pughitt to continue.

"On this line of which I speak there are 22 post offices, all doing a registry business. Now, Cheney, to get down to business. Our registered letters on that line are being tampered with and money extracted therefrom. That's the gist of the story, Jack. Go ahead with your questions."

"Thank you, Bob, only a few." He thought for a moment and then said: "These robberies come at seemingly stated times?"

"No, not at all. One will take place and of course we are active thereafter and the crook lays low, until we let up a little. We can't watch one place only, as you well know. Last week there was a jim dandy of a robbery out there, and the chief went in the air about it. So did I, and his instructions for me to put you on the case were gladly received."

"Yes, I see. How long between the last robbery and the one previous?"

"Two months."

"You say, Pughitt, there are 22 post offices on this route? Does each postmaster have access to the registered pouch?"

"Yes, he does. You see, Cheney, only one registered pouch is carried, and at each office it is opened, new matter added to it, sealed up again and passed on."

"Just so; and these robberies, how are they discovered?"

"Well, a firm in New York receives a registered letter supposed to contain, say, $2,000 in currency. The letter of transmittal states that, but the letter really contains thin paper cut to the size of a bill. The real money is abstracted and the paper substituted."

"Really; then between the time of the theft and its discovery a week or ten days elapses?"

"Right you are, Cheney."

"And if the thief wanted to make 'a get away' he'd have ample time?"

"Yes, but he doesn't make 'a get away.' He waits around until things quiet down and then makes another haul. Why, Cheney, there's been over $25,000 taken in this manner. The last one was for $5,000, put up in five $1,000 bills."

"You've been over the route, Bob?"

"Yes, I've been over it more than once. I've tried decoy letters, laid traps, done everything I could, but I can't find him."

"Suspect any one, Bob?"

"No, I don't. Every postmaster out there is a bright young chap who is growing up with the country. They all own traders' stores and are doing well. It's a puzzler, Jack, it truly is."

"No, it's not," said Cheney. Ordinarily he never asserted success until it was an accomplished fact. But now he smiled confidently as he looked at Pughitt.

"Well, I admire your confidence all right, Cheney, but don't be too sure, old man. Don't be too sure." Pughitt was just a bit nettled at Cheney's manner.

"I tell you what I'll do, Bob. I'll bet you a good dinner I catch your thief after he makes his next haul, and I won't go out of this office to get him. All I want you to do is to let one of my men, Guthrie, for instance, be a post office inspector for a short while; let him go make an inspection of this route, then one robbery more and you can go out and bring in your man."

"I'll fix Guthrie out all right, but it looks devilish queer to me. You're going to catch the man without leaving this office?"

"That's just what I'm going to do, Robert—for that dinner, eh?"

"All right, you're on, Cheney; and my appetite will not be small, I promise you that."

"Have it as big as you like, Bob; you'll pay for the food."

"Wait and see," said Pughitt, smiling. "Send Guthrie over; I'll fix him out all right. So long, Cheney."

"So long, Bob." Cheney thought for awhile, smiled considerably over his plans and then sent for Guthrie.

"Sid, you're a post office inspector. You're to go out and inspect 22 offices in Montana. Pughitt will fix you out in the proper way, but before you leave here for the west, see me again; I've got a few particular instructions to give you."

"All right, colonel. Post office inspecting is new in my line, but will make a stab at it all right."

Guthrie saw Pughitt that afternoon, and in the evening Cheney and Guthrie dined together. Cheney told him of his wager with Pughitt.

"Looks like a hard game, Jack," said Guthrie.

"Not at all, Sid. You just listen to me and do what I say." Then Col. Cheney told his plan. He went over it very carefully, smiling all the time, and just before he finished he handed Guthrie a small black box, and said: "Now you just do as I say, Guthrie, and you'll see a modern version of the spider and the fly."

Guthrie nearly exploded with laughter. "Well, of all the simple things I ever heard of, this beats 'em! Of course you'll land the thief; can't help it. The plan is so infernally simple no one would even think of it. I'll bet you Bob Pughitt hits the ceiling when he finds out how the trick is done."

"Don't let any one know anything about it, Sid. Go out and make your inspection, do as I have directed and then come back here and wait for developments. You won't wait long, I'm a-thinking."

"All right, colonel, you can count on me." And well did Cheney know that fact.

Cheney and Pughitt met frequently during the next few days and chaffed each other regarding the case.

"What fee are you going to charge the government for this hypnotic, telepathic demonstration you're going to give us, Jack?" asked Pughitt, with a tinge of sarcasm in his tone.

"About $5,000 and Guthrie's expenses west," replied Cheney, with a smile.

"The government will pay it if you run him down."

"He's as good as run down now, Bob."

"Wait and see."

Making an inspection of a stage route on which there are 22 offices is not a small undertaking, and Sid Guthrie was alone almost six weeks. Cheney heard from him frequently and knew the work was being well done. Pughitt became unmerciful in his twitting of Cheney. He really believed he had a good one on the great detective.

Guthrie walked in the colonel's office one morning and laconically said: "How'd'y, colonel."

Sid Guthrie was always laconic.

"Hello, Sid; what luck?"

"No luck about it, colonel. You told me to do certain things and they have surely been done." Briefly he recounted all the work he had done while absent. Cheney listened intently, and when he had finished said:

"How about a 'hunch' on this case, Sid; got one?"

"Nary a hunch, colonel. Every one of those 22 postmasters is a whole-souled, decent chap. They all have good businesses and are prosperous. I tried to find one who was spending more than he earned. Of course every one out in that country buys and sells land and cattle, but to all intents and purposes these men are straight as trivets."

"I wonder," said Cheney, musingly, "if any of the stage coach drivers could have a duplicate key?"

"Hardly possible, colonel. The stages are all pretty heavily loaded on that route and the driver wouldn't have much chance to do any trickery. No, sir; it's some one in a post office, but who, I'm danged if I can tell."

"Did you carry out my final instructions about the little—"

Cheney got no further. "Sure I did, colonel," replied Guthrie with a grin, "and that ought to fetch 'em."

"I think so. Well, go report to Pughitt and then be around."

Pughitt came over a little later and made great sport of Cheney's failure. The colonel stood it for awhile, but finally said:

"Look here, Pughitt, inside of ten days or two weeks there will be another robbery. The report will come to you. When it does, bring all the papers, packets, etc., in the case to me and in three minutes I'll name your robber. Is that clear?"

"Clear all right, Jack, but I'm afraid age is creeping on you."

"Wait and see."

It was just three weeks to a day after that that Pughitt came back.

"It came off all right, colonel, and here are the papers in the case." Cheney looked them over and cast all of them aside except the envelope from which the money had been extracted.

"I'll be back in a minute, Pughitt." He returned shortly and said: "Who's the postmaster at Boydston?"

Pughitt looked up quickly and said: "His name is Anderson, Abe Anderson, and a better chap never lived."

"That may all be so, Bob, but Abe Anderson was the man who extracted the money from this envelope—or it may have been some one in his office."

"No, it couldn't be anyone in the office, because Anderson handles all the mail himself. But, Cheney, why should that man steal?"

"Hang it, I don't know why he should steal; but he did it, all right."

"What proof have you?"

"All that is necessary to convict him in any court in the world."

"That may all be so, but what is it?"

"I can't tell you that now."

"But you expect me to arrest this man on just your say so?"

Cheney's eyes grew cold. Pughitt was crowding near to the border line of friendship. "Look here, Bob, I have lost some cases in my life, but I have never yet arrested the wrong man. Isn't that so?"

"That's true, Cheney."

"Well, then, you get Abe Anderson into this office, and if he isn't the guilty man I'll pay all the damages any court may assess for false imprisonment, and I guess I'm able to do that."

"All right, Cheney, I'll get him here, as you say, but I'm dubious as to the outcome."

It was ten days after that that Pughitt brought Anderson into Cheney's office.

Anderson was a likely looking young chap and hadn't the least indication of a crook, unless it be his shifty eyes. Cheney never admired a man who couldn't look you in the face. Anderson was not under arrest when he came in and acknowledged Pughitt's introduction courteously.

"Sit down, Mr. Anderson," Guthrie stood to the right and rear of Anderson, and Cheney, Pughitt and the suspect were grouped around the colonel's desk.

Cheney came right to the point.

"Mr. Anderson, the registered mails on the route running through Boydston have been systematically robbed. Some time ago the government asked me to take the case. I agreed to do so and also offered to apprehend the thief without leaving my office. That's why I have asked Pughitt to have you come here."

Anderson paled as he heard Cheney's words and half rose.

"Sit down, Anderson, sit down, and be calm. I know you're quick on the trigger, but there's a man standing behind you who is a damned sight quicker."

Anderson recovered himself and snapped out: "It's an infernal outrage to be brought in here and accused of something I know nothing about."

"Well, Mr. Anderson, if you know nothing about the case you need have no fear at all, and I'll stand any damages you may call for. But you do know about the case, you know all about it. On the 28th of last month you opened a registered letter addressed to Kuhn & Co., bankers, New York. You steamed open the letter, extracted therefrom $2,000 and substituted paper in its place. You've done it before. But this time you're caught."

"Your saying so doesn't prove it."

"That's true as preaching, Mr. Anderson; but wait a moment. After you had extracted the money you resealed the letter, using a small mucilage bottle, such as will be found on any postmaster's desk. The mucilage in that bottle was doctored, as was the mucilage in every office on that route."

Anderson paled again; the coils were tightening around him. Pughitt sat fascinated by the simple work of a great man. Guthrie was on to the whole game. Cheney proceeded.

"Some few weeks ago a post office inspector went over the route. My man Guthrie there was temporarily the inspector. I knew some postmaster was steaming open these registered packages and then re-sealing with mucilage. The robbed letters showed that. So I gave Guthrie a little black box containing 20 different liquid essences. At each office he used a different liquid and made notations as to just what they were. Yours happened to be the worst of the lot—essence of quinine. Therefore, when the last robbery occurred and the envelope was brought in here, I merely opened the resealed flap, tasted the mucilage, and—the bitter quinine taste was there. Looking over the list of essences and offices Guthrie had prepared for me, I saw: 'Boydston: Essence of Quinine.' Simple little thing, wasn't it, Mr. Anderson?"

"Good God, man," gasped Anderson, "that's uncanny!"

"No," smiled Cheney, "quinine isn't uncanny, it's just bitter."

Pughitt was dumfounded, but took his man away.

The dinner was had some time later, and it opened with an "Essence of Quinine cocktail." Only it wasn't bitter.

The Snitzen Party

A Pennsylvania Dutch Story

By Sara Ellmaker Ambler

(Copyright, by Joseph E. Bowles.)

Leah Lapp had been busy fixing up the winter kitchen ever since the early dinner hour of half-past ten for the special occasion of the snitzen party for her 17-year-old daughter Soosie.

It was a rule for snitzen parties to come early and stay late. By seven o'clock Leah Lapp's neat kitchen was almost uncomfortably full of Amish boys and girls about Soosie's own age.

Every one at this interesting party came armed with a paring-knife. When all were seated in prim rows around the walls of the room, Leah Lapp smilingly gave to each one a bright tin basin filled with Red Streaks and Yellow Sweetings.

"Var's Benjie Stoltz?" asked Lissy Planck of Benjie's sister.

"He's coming ven te horse be shoed," answered Debbie.

At the mention of Benjie Stoltz by Lissy one might have observed the rosy color on Soosie's face deepen. She cast a scornful look at Lissy as she whispered to her nearest neighbor: "She's badt off. Ven I haf ask for te boys I be ashamed of me. She can haf him."

The apple snitzen now began in earnest. It required two and one-half bushels of pared and sliced apples to thicken one barrel of cider. The young folks knew this, and that until the allotted task was completed they could not go to the barn to play and feast on fassnachts and cider.

What with paring and much talking and laughing Benjie's horse trotted into Jacob Lapp's lane without being heard. Nor did they notice when Benjie himself stood in the kitchen door, a broad smile on his round face, until he called out loudly: "Ve gates all te while."

Everybody laughed louder than ever, and Lissy Planck exclaimed, with a coquettish toss of her head: "Vell, now, Benjie, ain't you smart vunst?" and she edged closer up to Debbie to show him there was room and welcome for him to sit next to her.

Benjie evidently had other plans. With a direct gaze at Soosie, who was snitzen a "Red Streak" so busily she could not see Benjie's glance, he picked up a stool and placed it close to her chair. After removing his flat-crowned, broad-rim hat carefully with two hands, he sat down, remarking, calmly: "I beleaf I sits ona haer. Var's my snitzen-tish?"

Leah Lapp, whose duties as hostess kept her busy going back and forth, hurried to him with a tin dish that was beautifully bright, the very newest one in her possession, a fact Benjie commented upon with inward satisfaction.

"Soosie," called Benjie, softly edging his stool still closer to her chair, "here is a nice snitz."

At this appeal, Soosie perked her head to one side as saucily as a robin, as she exclaimed: "Geef it to Lissy. She vants it!"

Benjie began to pare apples gloomily after Soosie's rebuff. "She don't like me at all," he thought. "She meant it Saturday nights," he almost groaned out loud, "ven I trow te pebbles up to her window and she wouldn't coom town. She said she afereed te dattie not be sleeping. Tain't so. She cares not if he sleep or na sleep; if she likes me she cooms town and talks wis me in te best room."

All this had not been lost on Lissy, although she was seemingly very gay with key Steinhauser all this time. She felt so sorry for Benjie.

The big tubfuls of apples were emptied at last, and the great basketfuls of snitz were ready to put in the cider in the morning. This cider Jacob Lapp was now "boiling down" in the outside fireplace.

All the work being done, Leah and Jacob Lapp now went off to bed, according to custom, to allow the young people to enjoy themselves.

"Ve vill te barn gaen," said Soosie. "Now coom all," and she led the way, swinging a lantern back and forth.

Then Christie Lapp, Soosie's brother, said in his slow way: "I tink 'Old Maids' is a nice blay for te veemins and te mens."

"Yah, vell, it is," said Soosie, eagerly. "Coom on, Amos," and she marched down the barn floor, linking arms in his, to the evident disgust of Benjie, while they all sang the time honored doggerel. When they came to the words: "So give us your arm," in the song there was a mad scramble for a new partner, and some one was sure to be left standing alone—the old maid. Twice this fell to Soosie, and she stood in the middle of the circle, flushed, mortified and quite forlorn, while Lissy walked proudly past with an air of triumph, once on Benjie's arm and again on Amos' arm.

Benjie felt keenly for her, and in spite of her apparent indifference to him he could hardly keep from rushing to her and rescuing her from her disagreeable position. The love he held deep down in his honest heart was for Soosie, and Soosie only, and when some one suggested playing "Sassy Little Rogue" Benjie gladly seconded it, intending to choose Soosie for his partner before any of the other girls.

But Soosie refused to play at all, and said she must go for the cakes and cider, as it was grow'g late.

When she came back to the barn Benjie thought he saw traces of tears on her face, and he went to help pour the cider into the tumblers. Soosie's hand trembled as she held them for him, and he asked, with some concern: "Vat is te matter, Soosie?"

"Go away," Soosie answered him, shortly, but there was a sob in her voice that went straight to Benjie's simple heart.

"Ach, tese veemins," he mused, as he scratched his crooked head. "Mebbe she do like me," he reasoned, "and is ashamed. I ask her, and makes her say it if she do."

The snitzen party broke up with a grand parade around the barn floor to the time of "Bingo," after the feast of cakes and cider.

Benjie lingered behind the rest, and when he gave Soosie "good-night" at the big barn-yard gate, he said, with more determination in his tone than the remark warranted: "Te fassnachts vas goot, Soosie."

"So?" assented Soosie, greatly pleased. She prided herself upon her good cooking. "Vell, ten, coom and get some more just like tem."

"Ven, Soosie?" asked Benjie, catching on to this straw thrown out so artlessly.

The color began to come and go in Soosie's face with charming grace, as she answered, shyly: "Vy, coom to te butter-boiling in te morning. Dere be much vork in de morning."

Soosie was entirely right about the extra work the apple butter boiling made in the household. Three o'clock in the morning often found the family up and at it.

Benjie started to the apple butter boiling so early the next morning that the light just dawning in the east seemed a gray mist of a most melancholy tint. Finally he reached Jacob Lapp's gate.

The leaping flames of the big fire in the summer kitchen fireplace were casting weird shadows on the walls of the house. There was Soosie herself standing alone, pushing the big stirrer briskly back and forward among the bubbling apples and hissing cider. She did not notice his approach.

She looked up quickly, to see an expression on Benjie's face that she had never seen there before. It confused her. "Goot morning, Benjie," she said, shyly.

He longed for a chance to take hold of the stirrer to get beside Soosie.

"I can stir so goot, Soosie," he remarked, with an air of assumed indifference.

Soosie flushed, and hung her head. Their fingers touched, and then Benjie's hand covered Soosie's a prisoner on the stirrer. He tingled all over and forgot entirely about moving the stirrer.

"Stir te butter, Benjie," she protested.

The smell of scorching cider began to fill the air.

Jacob Lapp scented it as he was eating his breakfast, and called loudly from the door of the summer kitchen: "Te lodwarick burns! Stir, Soosie, stir!"

"Stir, Benjie, stir," pleaded Soosie. "Dattie vill be angry."

But Benjie, jubilant now, picked the stirrer clear out of the kettle, and said, firmly: "Say you tink me nice, Soosie. I know you does, but say it, and ten you ain't ashamed some mores."

"Dattie's" heavy, halting steps were heard approaching.

"Oh, he's a-cooming," panted Soosie, half in terror and half in ecstasy at Benjie's confession of love for her, and she grasped the big stirrer and plumped it into the bubbling apples with one hand, while with the other she pulled Benjie's face close down to hers, and whispered, softly, but loud enough for Benjie to hear, "I tink you be nice, Benjie, and I like you some mores as I do myself. Now vill you stir?"

And Benjie wilted to stir.

APOSTLE DOWIE DEAD... PEACE REIGNS IN ZION

Chicago, Ill. — John Alexander Dowie died at 7:40 o'clock Saturday morning at Shiloh House, Zion City. There were present with him when he died only Judge D. N. Barnes and two personal attendants. Dowie began to fail rapidly five weeks ago.

Friday afternoon, however, there were no indications of approaching death. He received a few followers and prayed for some people. His condition seemed to be about the same as for the last two or three weeks. One of the attendants remained with him until midnight and was relieved by another attendant. Shortly before 1 o'clock Saturday morning Dowie became delirious and "talk" was the same as at a religious meeting in the days of his prime. He denounced the people with old time vigor, ordered the guards to throw out disturbers, and acted just as he had on so many previous occasions and gradually became weaker and weaker, and an attendant telephoned for Judge Barnes, who reached Shiloh House at 7 o'clock. Forty minutes later Dowie died.

Late in the day Voliva declared that the death of the former leader will not affect the future of the church in any adverse manner. "Because of Mr. Dowie's sad mental and physical condition," said Voliva, "he has been a hindrance in many ways. Now that he has gone, all bitter feelings, just or unjust, will disappear. Dowie has done a work for humanity which is in some respects second to none that has been done by anybody, past or present. Nothing will be heard but talk of his good deeds, especially if it should be proven that his mind commenced to fail several years ago. His death will not alter the conduct of the church."

A Remarkable Service.

Yesterday morning at the 1st Christian church Elder S. R. Hawkins of South McAlester Corresponding Secretary of the Indian Territory Christian Missionary Society presented the plan of the home board and received $325. This places the 1st Christian church here in the Living Link line and ranks with the Oklahoma City, Chickasha, South McAlester and other churches of importance in the new state. This means that the church here will place in the field and sustain its own evangelist.

The home board and field will supplement this amount with $500.00. Last year every dollar paid to the board attracted fifteen other dollars. At the same ratio this means a return for this $325.00 the sum of $4,875.00.

CONVENTION GETTING READY FOR ADJOURNMENT

Guthrie, Ok., March 10 — Telegrams were sent to the twenty absentees by the constitutional convention to be in attendance Monday and Tuesday when the convention expects to pass finally the remainder of the constitution provisions and arrange for sine die adjournment. It is planned to recess, subject to call by President Murray, while a committee arranges the constitution and makes seven final drafts of it. This work will require about two weeks, during which the convention will not be needed in Guthrie.

Mr. Williams of Durant drove his report on public service corporations through to completion with the exception of one section which seeks to make gas as well as oil pipe lines common carriers, and provides that they shall transport each other's tonnage or product as the corporation commission or law may provide. This section is pending for a legal construction.

A provision was inserted that in all jury trials the jury shall return a general verdict, and that no law shall require the Court to direct the jury to make findings on particular questions of fact but the Court may in its discretion direct such special findings. This reverses the present Oklahoma practice.

Over Mr. Williams' vigorous protest the convention eliminated a section of the provision which stipulated that no corporation except one chartered under laws of Oklahoma should be authorized to construct, operate or maintain any railroad, street railway, canal, pipe line or express telephone or telegraph line or car association in the state.

A provision is added giving authority through the commissioner for mine, elevator, compress operators, etc., to put in side tracks and compel railroad companies to make track connections. This is from Missouri.

The supplemental report of the insurance committee was ruled out of order, save in respect to the election of commissioner by the people. The convention also asked that the official qualifications be outlined. Authority was given the legislature to provide for the organization of mutual fire and life companies, but those features of the new report reducing the entrance fees, the annual tax and for pensioning disabled and meritorious firemen were ruled out on a point that a redraft of the provision was not asked for. The tax remains 2 per cent on the gross business.

The convention failed to make headway on the election systems, and with three legal reports for its guidance discovered that the ordinance submitting the constitution in election was not technically drawn and the committee's system was sent to the legal committee for revision.

By agreement the legislative districts were reopened and an additional senatorial district created. In the revision three senatorial districts were changed to be Woods and Woodward counties, Alfalfa, Blaine and Major counties, Oklahoma county and a new one, Canadian and Kingfisher counties. An effort to give Wagoner county two representatives instead of one failed. Greer county was divided into two legislative districts, with two representatives.

The public buildings committee has recommended that at the first general election after the year 1913, the question of permanent location of the capital is to be submitted to the voters as the legislature may provide. No money is to be expended for temporary quarters in Guthrie, except for the convention transaction of the state business. When once located, the capital shall not be changed except by a two-thirds vote of all the people. The committee makes no recommendations regarding the location of two additional normal schools in the Indian Territory, as was proposed.

FOR SUPREME COURT CLERK.

Former Editor of The News Well Qualified for the Position.

E. C. Patton, journal clerk of the constitutional convention has announced his candidacy on the democratic ticket for clerk of the Oklahoma supreme court. Mr. Patton was for two years owner and editor of the Tishomingo (I. T.) News, which business he relinquished to become private secretary to Gov. Douglas H. Johnston of the Chickasaw nation.

Formerly Mr. Patton lived in Ada where for a time he practiced law, and later was a joint owner and editor of The News. To make an efficient clerk of the supreme court requires a strong combination of talent, he should have a good knowledge of the law, should have the editorial instinct and some literary attainments and should be an adept in the technique of clerical work. It so happens that Mr. Patton is well qualified in all these respects. The News staff has known him for years, and they can testify that he is especially well qualified for the duties of this responsible position.

COMMISSIONERS NAMED TO NEGOTIATE FOR COAL LAND

Guthrie, Okla., March 11 — President Murray has appointed the Coal and Asphalt commission which is to negotiate with the Choctaw and Chickasaw tribes on the part of the new state for twenty mineral deposits of Indian Territory. The commission is composed of T. H. Leahy, Pawhuska, Ok. James J. Chambers, Atoka, I. T., A. H. Ellis, Orlando, Ok., J. B. Tesh, Hobart, Ok., and J. J. Curl, Bartlesville, I. T., all delegates to the constitutional convention. Mr. Leahy, chairman of the commission, is in intermediate Osage, and has been prominent in the management of that tribe's affairs before the national government. He and Mr. Chambers are attorneys. Mr. Tesh and Mr. Ellis are farmers and Mr. Curl is a business man.

The appointment of this commission was authorized by the convention after the subject on purchase of the coal and asphalt deposits for the new state school fund had been extensively investigated. These deposits lie almost entirely in the Choctaw and Chickasaw nations, ranging in value, it is represented, from ten to twenty millions of dollars. The Choctaws and Chickasaws are understood to favor the deal and in the event Oklahoma decides to purchase will join in asking the government's consent to a transfer of the property. The commission is directed in the resolution to make its recommendations to the first state administration.

Bigger for Alderman.

Many good democrats have urged R. G. Biggar to make the race for alderman in the 4th ward, so that he authorizes The News to announce his candidacy subject to the action of the city primary tomorrow.

Mr. Biggar has been a resident of Ada for several years, during which time he has established himself in the high regard of his fellow citizens. Proprietor of the Ada Bottling Works, he is recognized as one of Ada's good, sound business men. He has such a grasp of business principles, both in private and public affairs, as would make him a good alderman.

The News commends him to the democracy of the city.

President's Son Better.

Washington, March 11 — Marked improvement is shown in the condition of Archie Roosevelt, the president's son, who is ill with diphtheria. Surgeon General Hixey last evening expressed the opinion that Archie was practically out of danger, so far as the diphtheria is concerned, but the disease has left him in a somewhat weakened condition. He added, however, that if no complications set in the boy should be well in two or three weeks.

CRAZY SNAKE WILL TAKE HIS BAND TO MEXICO

Okmulgee, I. T., March 11 — Chitto Harjo, more familiarly known as "Crazy Snake," who has long refused to accept the ways of civilization and who still yearns for the wild days of the plains, who went to Washington once to present his grievances and who was against the government then, is going to bid Oklahoma good bye.

Statehood was the last straw for the picturesque chief.

Mexico will soon become his home. Chitto Harjo says he will take his band of tried and true warriors to Mexico with him.

Already the affairs of the Snakes are being shaped up for this move, and M. A. Holcomb, agent for the Santa Fe in this city, has made necessary arrangements for the transport of the Indians.

The band of Snakes, headed by Chitto Harjo, sent a delegation to Mexico some time ago and the land was arranged for between the committee and the Mexican government.

INTEREST INTENSE IN THE BATTLE OF BALLOTS

On the eve of the battle of ballots tomorrow, whereat will be chosen the Democratic nominees for city offices—which is tantamount to election—the interest is intense. All day long groups of men have been on the sidewalks in animated fashion discussing and arguing for the various candidates. There is every indication of a lively election tomorrow.

For the larger offices there are spirited contests, except for attorney and for treasurer. T. P. Holt for the former and S. W. Hill for the latter have no opposition. R. G. Biggar having today announced for alderman from the Fourth and J. T. Sutton in the Third, there will be contests for aldermanic honors in every ward except the 2nd.

As to qualifications of voters tomorrow, aside from the pledge to support the nominees, six months' residence in the Territory and 30 days in the ward prior to the regular city election, April 2, is required. This is decided by the executive committee in conformity with the Oklahoma election law.

The voting places will be the same as announced in the mayor's proclamation elsewhere in this paper. Polls will be open at 8 a. m. and close at sun-down.

HIGH JUMPING AT SEA.

A Whale that Jumped Over a Boat—Tunas That Leap 20 Feet.

"The most stupendous of all leapers of the sea," says a writer in Outing, is the whale. I have seen a monster weighing hundreds of tons possibly 80 feet in length, rise slowly and deliberately out of the water until it appeared to be dancing on the surface entirely clear of it then sink slowly back.

Such a leap is on record in the annals of the British navy. A large whale cleared a boat going completely over it an estimated leap of 20 feet in air—how many in a lateral direction was not known.

Exactly how high a tuna can leap it is difficult to say. I have seen the water beaten into foam by them four miles distant and have a photograph showing a fish—a black streak at least a mile distant high in air—a jump of certainly 10 or 15 feet, and it is my opinion based on what I have seen that it is possible for a lusty tuna at full speed to project itself 20 feet into the air and 30 or 40 feet in a horizontal direction.

I judge the latter possibly from the leap of a big tuna which cleared the kelp and landed high on the rocks at Santa Catalina. I have often stood in the center of a school of leaping tunas and watched them; but the situation is not one suggestive of repose or peace of mind.

NEWSBOYS HAD REAL TREAT

And Possibly Young Woman Enjoyed Experience Too

A young woman blond and pretty was getting fully as much fun out of a very thoughtful act as were the eight very dirty little news-boys she was treating to maple sundae in a Twenty-third street drug store the other day. They were one and all having the time of their lives says the New York Sun.

It was a real party and the yes of the eight simple minded in excitement. It was lots better than getting rid of their last paper.

See kids, isn't this bully? exclaimed one, but his companions had their noses so close to the English walnuts plentifully sprinkled over the top of the drink that they couldn't talk intelligently.

The girl stayed by until the last spoonful was regrettably scooped out and the boys thanking her in some what bashful fashion little in accord with their natural brashness passed out the door. Then with a happy sigh she too left.

Someone watching the proceeding rather envied her the satisfaction for small boys of that sort do appreciate anything done for them which doesn't point a moral.

An Unseen Witness

The criminal court at Salzburg Germany has been forced to hold a sitting in a convict prison to the refusal of a nun to give evidence in public. A woman in the service of the convent on the Nibelung was on his trial for stealing and the evidence of Sister Constance, one of the nuns was material. She however refused to attend the court on the ground of her vow which forbade her to allow herself to be seen by men. An appeal to the archbishop of Salzburg, who is the regent, that only the pope himself could release the sister from her vows so that a man's were made for her to be examined in the convent. The judge and the counsel were accommodated in the visitors' room while Sister Constance supported by the abbess took her place behind a curtain so that she would be heard but not seen. The sister then underwent an examination and cross-examination and on her evidence the man was condemned to two months' imprisonment. The antichristian papers protested against evidence given in this way being admissible.

What He Meant

Praise from a husband's lips is all ways pleasant to the wife, but the praise may be too discriminating to suit her. Under the very colloquially apt title of The Mean Thing, this amusing little tale is to be found in Youth's Companion.

I thought it was nice of you to tell that carpenter who seemed to think women knew nothing that I could hammer nails like lightning said Mrs. Morse to her husband. But I'm afraid dear you are not an unprejudiced judge. I really don't think I'm such a very good hammerer.

Oh, he knew what I meant," said Mr. Morse cheerfully. You know lightning never strikes twice in the same place they say.

Wouldn't Be Dictated to By Webster

Dr. Bacon a New England clergyman of long ago was reproached by a friend with some pronunciation which was not according to Webster.

Webster lived in his parish and the doughty divine was not disposed to be snubbed with the dictionary. "What right has Webster to dictate my pronunciation?" he demanded haughtily. "He is one of my parishioners and ought to get his pronunciation from me and not I from him!"—Youth's Companion.

Force of Habit

"How was it that you could not keep that job I got you as a car conductor?" "I am afraid it was owing to my habit of procrastination. In what way?" You see even when people wanted to get on my car I would try to put them off."—Baltimore American.

JOHN HAD BEEN RETRIEVED

Friend Told Good Lie and Stuck to It, But Without Avail.

This being a true story of a recent occurrence the prominent politician will be known as Mr. John Brown, and his intimate friend, a politician of less prominence as Mr. James McCoy. It seems that at about noon Mr. Brown was unduly exhilarated when, seen by his friend, and after exacting from him a promise that he would at once go home Mr. McCoy went to his office. About three o'clock in the afternoon he responded to a telephone call and was just a little hurried on learning that Mrs. Brown was at the other end of the wire.

Have you seen John to-day?" she asked.

I did Mrs. Brown. He was called away on important business this morning but just a little while ago I got a message from him that he would start back on the next train. He'll be in town in about an hour.

Mr. McCoy was still at work in his office at five o'clock when again he was called to the telephone. Again it was Mrs. Brown.

"Has John got back yet, Mr. McCoy?"

"Yes, but he had several important matters to attend to and just started for the street car a few minutes ago. He'll be home in three quarters of an hour at the latest."

"I am very much obliged Mr. McCoy, but I put John to bed half an hour ago."

All of which goes to show that there are times when a lie well stuck to is not as good as the truth.

WHERE AMERICA IS SUPREME

Traveler Praises Coffee Served in This Country.

It is refreshing to me," said the smartly groomed woman, to get back to America where I can have warm and good coffee to drink with my meals.

Oh yes, of course one can buy bottled water in Europe but somehow one seldom does. At least not to me on the table. One drinks according to the country over there and the natives seem to signant of the uses of water internally at least as a Kentucky colonel.

In England I drank ale and tea in France claret in Italy Chianti in Germany beer and Moselle and Rhine wine and in Holland coffee.

No I did not like the coffee they make in France notwithstanding we hear so much in our own restaurants about French coffee. Neither do I care for Turkish coffee. In fact America and Holland—or I should say New York and Holland—are the only places in the world where I can find coffee to suit me.

Cremation of the Dead

Cremation is one of the most ancient methods of disposing of the dead. Before the beginning of the Christian era cremation prevailed among all civilized nations except the Jews, Chinese and Egyptians. It was however this form gave way to earth burial. Cremation has had a revival during the last few years and from one crematorium in existence in 1880 there were now 100 in 1900 and since then others have been added to the list each year. Cremation is a common thing in Japan where 97 per cent of the dead are cremated. The first crematorium in the United States was built at Washington, Pa. in 1876 by Dr. I. Moynock and the first cremation that was that of the body of Baron de Palm which took place in December of the same year. This was the only cremation in the United States until 1884—Sun in Magazine.

Mount Kosciuszko Park

A hundred square miles of country around Mount Kosciuszko one of the highest peaks of the Australian Alps has been proclaimed a reserve by the government with a view of the formation of a national park. Frequent shrieks when Kosciuszko fell according to the poet Campbell and this peak was so named by a Polish patriot the late Count de Straszewski a political refugee who spent several years in Australia and did some valuable exploring and geological work. He was probably the first discoverer of gold in Australia but at the request of the local government which feared an outbreak of the convict population if the news became known he made no public announcement of the fact. He spent the closing years of his life in London and was knighted by Queen Victoria.

Bible Drove Him to Drink

Abram B. Critchfield, very drunk was picked up by the police force from the gutter on South Main street says a dispatch from Waterbury Conn. In his hand he clasped an open Bible and he spoke to the officers strangely in Scriptural phrases. In court Abram said that study of the Bible had driven him to his fall.

It is so full of inconsistencies he declared. I learn its truths and am uplifted—then I discover that its truths are false and I sink to the depths. How can I deliberately stay in my right mind judge when I find that the foundation of salvation is built on sand and good liquor which will make me forget it is so cheap?

Cartidge was sent to jail for 30 days.

Proof of Good Memory

I got a shock from a lecture battery today said the first hobo. "Gee" it's a funny kind of a feeling just like taking a bath. Say," exclaimed the other one, "you must have a great memory."

OVERDRAFTS
It is becoming well known by business men that overdrafts whether large or small are not approved by the comptroller of the currency. The large central banks all over drafts only in a very strict way. And this matters not how small is not approved by the powers that be. This unbusinesslike habit of overdrafting grew out of old banking on moving products, such as cotton, grain and fat stock on the move. The overdraft system is a waste of money and the man whose account is always in overdraft is the man who is more money than he makes and will finally have to sink account.

SCHOOL LAND PROVISION.

Weaver Stands Steadfastly Against Sale Thereof.

In the constitutional convention Saturday by a vote of 79 to 13 the provision shifting the state and school land question to the shoulders of the legislature was adopted. This was somewhat of a triumph for the lessees of those lands who earnestly desire the sale thereof with preference rights to purchase for themselves. Mr. Weaver urged constitutional prohibition of their sale, and voted nay on the provision adopted, and as reported in the Oklahoma State Capital spoke as follows in explanation of his vote.

I voted no on this provision because I think it is a serious mistake not to safe guard in the constitution a portion of Oklahoma's school lands because my platform stood for the retention of the school lands until authorized to be sold by a majority vote of the people and because I together with many other delegates signed the labor demands pledging ourselves by that act to not vote for the sale of the school lands unless authorized by a majority vote of the electors the rightful landlords. I fear that many delegates in this convention have in their eagerness for political preferment been willing to jeopardize the safety of the school endowment a heritage which belongs not to them but to the children of Oklahoma.

Do Not Crowd the Season

The first warm days of spring bring with them a desire to get out and enjoy exhilarating air and sunshine. Children that have been housed up all winter are brought out and you wonder where they all came from. The heavy winter clothing is thrown aside and many shed their flannels. Then a cold wave comes and people say that grip is epidemic. Colds at this season are even more dangerous than in mid winter as there is much more danger of pneumonia. Take Chamberlain's Cough Remedy however and you will have nothing to fear. It always cures and we have never known a cold to result in pneumonia when it was used. It is pleasant and safe to take. Children like it. For sale by G. M. Ramsey.

CONVENTION GETTING READY FOR ADJOURNMENT

Guthrie, Ok., March 10.—Telegrams were sent to the twenty absentees by the constitutional convention to be in attendance Monday and Tuesday when the convention expects to pass finally the remainder of the constitution's provisions and arrange for the adjournment. It is planned to recess, subject to call by President Murray, while a committee arranges the constitution and makes seven final drafts of it. This work will require about two weeks, during which the convention will not be needed in Guthrie.

Mr. Williams of Durant drove his report on public service corporations through to completion with the exception of one section which seeks to make gas as well as oil pipe lines common carriers and provides that they shall transport each other's tonnage or product as the corporation commission or law may provide. This section is pending for a legal construction.

A provision was inserted that in all jury trials the jury shall return a general verdict and that no law shall require the Court to direct the jury to make findings on particular questions of fact but the Court may in its discretion direct such special findings. This reverses the present Oklahoma practice.

Over Mr. Williams' vigorous protest the convention eliminated a section of the provision which stipulated that no corporation except one chartered under laws of Oklahoma should be authorized to construct, operate or maintain any railroad, street railway, canal, pipe, car, express, telephone or telegraph line or air association in the state.

A provision is added giving authority through the commissioner for mine elevator, compress operators, etc., to put in side tracks and compel railroad companies to make track connections. This is from Missouri.

The supplemental report of the insurance committee was ruled out of order save in respect to the election of commissioner by the people. The convention also asked that the official qualifications be outlined. Authority was given the legislature to provide for the organization of mutual fire and life companies but those features of the new report reducing the entrance fees, the annual tax and for pensioning disabled and meritorious firemen were ruled out on a point that a redraft of the provision was not asked for. The tax remains 2 per cent on the gross business.

The convention failed to make headway on the election systems, and with three legal reports for its guidance discovered that the ordinance submitting the constitution in election was not technically drawn and the committee's system was sent to the legal committee for revision.

By agreement the legislative districts were reopened and an additional senatorial district created. In the revision three senatorial districts were changed to be Woods and Woodward counties, Alfalfa, Blaine and Major counties, Oklahoma county and a new one, Canadian and Kingfisher counties. An effort to give Wagoner county two representatives instead of one failed. Greer county was divided into two legislative districts, with two representatives.

The public buildings committee has recommended that at the first general election after the year 1913, the question of permanent location of the capital is to be submitted to the voters as the legislature may provide. No money is to be expended for temporary quarters in Guthrie, except for the convention transaction of the state business. When once located the capital shall not be changed except by a two-thirds vote of all the people. The committee makes no recommendations regarding the location of two additional normal schools in the Indian Territory as was proposed.

FOR SUPREME COURT CLERK.

Former Editor of The News Well Qualified for the Position.

E. C. Patton, journal clerk of the constitutional convention has announced his candidacy on the democratic ticket for clerk of the Oklahoma supreme court. Mr. Patton was for two years owner and editor of the Tishomingo (I. T.) News, which business he relinquished to become private secretary to Gov. Douglas H. Johnston of the Chickasaw nation.

Formerly Mr. Patton lived in Ada where for a time he practiced law, and later was a joint owner and editor of The News. To make an efficient clerk of the supreme court requires a strong combination of talent, he should have a good knowledge of the law, should have the editorial instinct and some literary attainments and should be an adept in the technique of clerical work. It so happens that Mr. Patton is well qualified in all these respects. The News staff has known him for years, and they can testify that he is especially well qualified for the duties of this responsible position.

COMMISSIONERS NAMED TO NEGOTIATE FOR COAL LAND

Guthrie, Okla., March 11.—President Murray has appointed the Coal and Asphalt commission which is to negotiate with the Choctaw and Chickasaw tribes on the part of the new state for twenty mineral deposits of Indian Territory. The commission is composed of T. H. Leahy, Pawhuska, Ok.; James J. Chambers, Atoka, I. T.; A. H. Ellis, Orlando, Ok.; J. B. Tschobert, Ok.; and J. J. Curl, Bartlesville, I. T., all delegates to the constitutional convention. Mr. Leahy, chairman of the commission, is an intermarried Osage and has been prominent in the management of that tribe's affairs before the national government. He and Mr. Chambers are attorneys. Mr. Tschobert and Mr. Ellis are farmers and Mr. Curl is a business man.

The appointment of this commission was authorized by the convention after the subject on purchase of the coal and asphalt deposits for the new state's school fund had been extensively investigated. These deposits lie almost entirely in the Choctaw and Chickasaw nations ranging in value, it is reported, from ten to twenty millions of dollars. The Choctaws and Chickasaws are understood to favor the deal and in the event Oklahoma decides to purchase will join in asking the government's consent to a transfer of the property. The commission is directed in the resolution to make its recommendations to the first state administration.

Biggar for Alderman.

Many good democrats have urged R. G. Biggar to make the race for alderman in the 4th ward, so that he authorizes The News to announce his candidacy subject to the action of the city primary tomorrow.

Mr. Biggar has been a resident of Ada for several years, during which time he has established himself in the high regard of his fellow citizens. Proprietor of the Ada Bottling Works, he is recognized as one of Ada's good, sound business men. He has such a grasp of business principles, both in private and public affairs, as would make him a good alderman.

The News commends him to the democracy of the city.

President's Son Better.

Washington, March 11.—Marked improvement is shown in the condition of Archie Roosevelt, the president's son, who is ill with diphtheria. Surgeon General Rixey last evening expressed the opinion that Archie was practically out of danger so far as the diphtheria is concerned but the disease has left him in a somewhat weakened condition. He added, however, that if no complications set in the boy should be well in two or three weeks.

CRAZY SNAKE WILL TAKE HIS BAND TO MEXICO

Oklmulgee, I. T., March 11.—Chitto Harjo, more familiarly known as "Crazy Snake" who has long refused to accept the ways of civilization and who still yearns for the wild days of the plains, who went to Washington once to present his grievances and who was against the government then is going to bid Oklahoma good bye.

Statehood was the last straw for the picturesque chief.

Mexico will soon become his home. Chitto Harjo says he will take his band of tried and true warriors to Mexico with him.

Already the affairs of the Snakes are being shaped up for this move, and M. A. Holcomb, agent for the Santa Fe in this city, has made necessary arrangements for the transport of the Indians.

The band of Snakes, headed by Chitto Harjo, sent a delegation to Mexico some time ago and the land was arranged for between the committee and the Mexican government.

INTEREST INTENSE IN THE BATTLE OF BALLOTS

On the eve of the battle of ballots tomorrow, whereat will be chosen the Democratic nominees for city offices—which is tantamount to election—the interest is intense. All day long groups of men have been on the sidewalks in animated fashion discussing and arguing for the various candidates. There is every indication of a lively election tomorrow.

For the larger offices there are spirited contests, except for attorney and for treasurer T. P. Holt for the former and S. W. Hill for the latter have no opposition. R. G. Biggar having today announced for alderman from the Fourth and J. T. Sutton in the Third, there will be contests for aldermanic honors in every ward except the 2nd.

As to qualifications of voters tomorrow, aside from the pledge to support the nominees, six months' residence in the Territory and 30 days in the ward prior to the regular city election, April 2, is required. This as decided by the executive committee in conformity with the Oklahoma election law. The voting places will be the same as announced in the mayor's proclamation elsewhere in this paper. Polls will be open at 8 a. m. and close at sun-down.

A Whale that Jumped Over a Boat—Tunas That Leap 20 Feet.

"The most stupendous of all leapers of the sea," says a writer in Outing, is the whale. I have seen a monster weighing hundreds of tons possibly 80 feet in length, rise slowly and deliberately out of the water until it appeared to be dancing on the surface entirely clear of it then sink slowly back.

Such a leap is on record in the annals of the British navy. A large whale cleared a boat going completely over it an estimated leap of 20 feet in air—how many in a lateral direction was not known.

Exactly how high a tuna can leap it is difficult to say. I have seen the water beaten into foam by them four miles distant and have a photograph showing a fish—a black streak at least a mile distant high in air—a jump of certainly 10 or 15 feet, and it is my opinion based on what I have seen that it is possible for a lusty tuna at full speed to project itself 20 feet into the air and 30 or 40 feet in a horizontal direction.

I judge the latter possibly from the leap of a big tuna which cleared the kelp and landed high on the rocks at Santa Catalina. I have often stood in the center of a school of leaping tunas and watched them, but the situation is not one suggestive of repose or peace of mind.

NEWSBOYS HAD REAL TREAT

And Possibly Young Woman Enjoyed Experience Too

A young woman blond and pretty was getting fully as much fun out of a very thoughtful act as were the eight very dirty little newsboys she was treating to maple sundae in a Twenty-third street drug store the other day. They were one and all having the time of their lives save the New York Sun.

It was a real party and the yes of the outfit simply bulged in excitement. It was lots better than getting rid of their last paper.

See kids, ain't this bully? exclaimed one, but his companions held their noses so close to the English walnuts plentifully sprinkled over the top of the drink that they couldn't talk intelligently.

The girl stayed by until the last spoonful was regrettably scooped out and the boys thanking her in some what bashful fashion little in accord with their natural brashness passed out the door. Then with a happy sigh she too left.

Someone watching the proceeding rather envied her the satisfaction for small boys of that sort to appreciate anything done for them which doesn't point a moral.

An Unseen Witness

The criminal court at Salzburg Germany has been forced to hold a sitting in a convict cell to the refusal of a man to give evidence in public. A woman in the service of the convent on the Nunsberg was his trial for a crime—and the evidence of Sister Cordelia, one of the nuns was material. She however refused to attend the court on the ground of her vow which forbade her to allow herself to be seen by men. An appeal to the archbishop of Salzburg elicited the reply that only the pope himself could release the sister from her vows so arrangements were made for her to be examined in the convent. The judge and the counsel were accommodated in the visitors' room while Sister Cordelia supported by the abbess took her place behind a curtain so that she would be heard but not seen. The sister then underwent an examination and cross-examination and on her evidence the man was condemned to two months' imprisonment. The anti-clerical papers protested against evidence given in this way being admissible.

What He Meant

Praise from a husband's lips is always pleasant to the wife, but the praise may be too discommuniting to suit her.

Under the very colloquially apt title of "The Man in Thing" this amusing little tale is to be found in Youth's Companion.

I thought it was nice of you to tell that carpenter who seemed to think women knew nothing that I could hammer nails like lightning, said Mrs. Morse to her husband. But I'm afraid dear you are not an unprejudiced judge. I really don't think I'm such a very good hammerer.

Oh, he knew what I meant, said Mr. Morse cheerfully. You know lightning never strikes twice in the same place they say.

Wouldn't Be Dictated to By Webster

Dr. Bacon a New England clergyman of long ago was reproached by a friend with some pronunciation which was not according to Webster.

Webster lived in his parish and the doughty divine was not disposed to be snubbed with the dictionary.

"What right has Webster to dictate my pronunciation?" he demanded haughtily. "He is one of my parishioners and ought to get his pronunciation from me and not I from him!"—Youth's Companion.

Force of Habit

"How was it that you could not keep that job I got you as a can can doctor?" "I am afraid it was owing to my habit of procrastination. In what way? You see even when people wanted to get on my can I would try to put them off."—Baltimore American.

Friend Told Good Lie and Stuck to It, But Without Avail.

This being a true story of a recent occurrence the prominent politician will be known as Mr. John Brown, and his intimate friend, a politician of less prominence as Mr. James McCoy. It seems that at about noon Mr. Brown was unduly exhilarated when seen by his friend, and after exacting from him a promise that he would at once go home Mr. McCoy went to his office. About three o'clock in the afternoon he responded to a telephone call and was just a little flurried on learning that Mrs. Brown was at the other end of the wire.

Have you seen John to-day?" she asked.

I did Mrs. Brown. He was called away on important business this morning but just a little while ago I got a message from him that he would start back on the next train. He'll be in town in about an hour.

Mr. McCoy was still at work in his office at five o'clock when again he was called to the telephone. Again it was Mrs. Brown.

"Has John got back yet, Mr. McCoy?"

"Yes, but he had several important matters to attend to and just started for the street car a few minutes ago. He'll be home in three quarters of an hour at the latest."

"I am very much obliged Mr. McCoy, but I put John to bed half an hour ago."

All of which goes to show that there are times when a lie will stick to it not as good as the truth.

WHERE AMERICA IS SUPREME

Traveler Praises Coffee Served in This Country.

It is refreshing to me," said the smartly govted woman to get back to America where I can have water and good coffee to drink with my meals.

Oh yes, of course one can buy bottled water in Europe but somehow one seldom does. At least not to us on the table. One drinks according to the country over there and the natives seem as ignorant of the uses of water internally at least as a Kentucky colonel.

In England I drank ale and tea. In France claret. In Italy Chianti. In Germany beer and Moselle and Rhine wine and in Holland coffee.

No I did not like the coffee they make in France notwithstanding we hear so much in our own restaurants about French coffee. Neither do I care for Turkish coffee. In fact America and Holland—or I should say New York and Holland—are the only places in the world where I can find coffee to suit me.

Cremation of the Dead

Cremation is one of the most ancient methods of disposing of the dead. Before the Christians of the Christian era cremation prevailed among all civilized nations except the Jews, Chinese and Egyptians. Later however this custom gave way to earth burial.

Cremation has had a revival during the last few years and from one crematorium in existence in 1850 there were over 100 in 1890 and since then others have been added to the list. Each year 47 per cent of the dead are cremated. The first crematorium in the United States was built at Washington, Pa. in 1871 by Dr. L. Morse and the first cremation that was that of the body of Byron de la Palm which took place in December of the same year. This was the only cremation in the United States until 1884—Sunday Magazine.

Mount Kosciuszko Park

A hundred square miles of country around Mount Kosciuszko one of the highest peaks of the Australian Alps has been proclaimed a reserve by the government with a view of the formation of a national park. Freckles shrieked when Kosciuszko fell according to the poet Campbell and this peak was so named by a Polish patriot the late Count de Strzelski a political refugee who spent several years in Australia and did some valuable exploring and geological work.

He was probably the first discoverer of gold in Australia but at the request of the local government which feared an outbreak of the convict population if the news became known he made no public announcement of the fact. He spent the closing years of his life in London and was knighted by Queen Victoria.

Bible Drove Him to Drink

Abram B. Cantiliffe very drunk was picked up by the police force from the gutter on South Main street says a dispatch from Waterbury Conn. In his hand he clasped an open Bible and he spoke to the officers strangely in Scriptural phrases. In court Abram said that study of the Bible had driven him to his fall.

It is so full of inconsistencies he declared. I learn its truths and am uplifted—then I discover that its truths are false and I sink to the depths. How can I deliberately stay in my right mind judge when I find that the foundation of salvation is built on sand and good liquor which will make me forget it is so cheap?

Cartidge was sent to jail for 30 days.

Proof of Good Memory

I got a shock from a lecture last tery today said the first hobo. "Go!" It is a funny kind of a feeling just like taking a bath. Say! exclaimed the other one, "you must have a great memory."
